PROGRAM MANAGERS

Start working for yourself today!

REASON #1 HIGHER RATES

1099 self-employed engineering contractors make a much higher flat hourly rate than W2 contract engineers because companies are not committed to paying benefits or taxes for the worker.

In order to help ease the burden of searching for benefits, companies like JOINER Services have created partnership programs to support contractors with benefit connections.

Self-employed contractors understand rates fluctuate between projects and know they can quickly accumulate wealth in a short amount of time.

REASON #2

TAX CREDITS

Self-employed contractors also receive much larger tax breaks than W2 employees. Many things can be considered as write-offs for your self-employed business such as: travel, hotel, food, professional services, office supplies, marketing materials, insurance premiums and much more!

- Health Insurance Premiums
- Professional Services Fees
- Home Office
- Vehicle For Business
- Internet and Phone

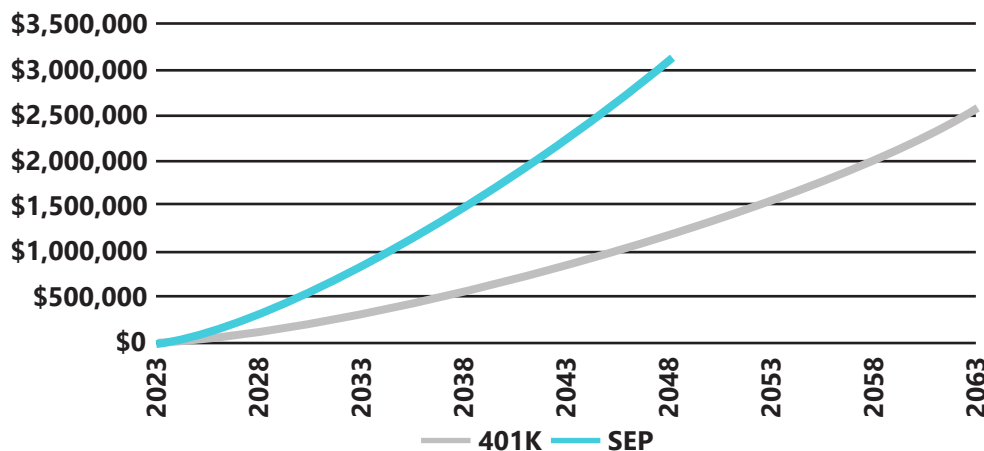

REASON #3

RETIREMENT SAVINGS

A Simplified Employee Pension Plan (SEP) IRA is the ideal way for a self-employed individual to save for retirement. The maximum allowed to contribute to a SEP IRA in 2023 is $66,000 compared to a traditional 401K retirement account which is only $22,500. With the higher allowable contributions, a 1099 employee can save much more using a SEP IRA to prepare for retirement.

401K vs SEP IRA

Max contributions allowed as of 2023: 401K $22,500 and SEP $66,000
Annual investment return = 5%
